

DOMESTIC AND SEXUAL VIOLENCE FACT SHEET

INCIDENCE, PREVALENCE AND SEVERITY

Domestic violence and sexual assault are pervasive and life-threatening crimes affecting millions of individuals across our nation regardless of age, economic status, race, religion or education.

- Over 1 in 3 women have experienced rape, physical violence, and/or stalking by an intimate partner in their lifetime¹ and each year approximately 7 million women are raped and/or physically assaulted by a current or former intimate partner.²
- 1 in 5 women and 1 in 77 men has experienced rape in her or his lifetime.³
- Nationwide, an average of 3 women are killed by a current or former intimate partner every day.⁴

CHILDREN AND YOUTH

Children are particularly vulnerable as both victims of and witnesses to domestic violence and sexual abuse and assault. In order to break the cycle of violence, we must intervene and provide services.

- Approximately 15.5 million children are exposed to domestic violence every year.⁵
- 1 in 4 girls and 1 in 6 boys are sexually abused before the age of 18.⁶
- Young women between the ages of 16 and 24 experience the highest rate of intimate partner violence and sexual assault.⁷
- Children exposed to violence are more likely to attempt suicide, abuse drugs and alcohol, run away from home, engage in teenage prostitution and commit sexual assault crimes.⁸
- Men exposed to physical abuse, sexual abuse and/or domestic violence as children are almost 4 times more likely than other men to perpetrate domestic violence as adults.⁹

COSTS

Domestic violence and sexual assault severely impact not only victims, but the entire community. In addition to the devastating damage suffered by victims and their families, these crimes also have huge financial costs.

- A 2009 study found that the assorted costs associated with murder are staggeringly high: the average victim costs exceed $6.5 million with more than $426,000 in justice system costs, and nearly $200,000 in lost offender productivity.¹⁰
- In the U.S., rape is the most costly crime to its victims, totaling $127 billion a year, which includes medical costs, lost earnings, pain, suffering and lost quality of life.¹¹
- Domestic violence has been estimated to cost employers in the U.S. up to $13 billion each year.¹² Between one-quarter and one-half of domestic violence victims report that they lost a job, at least in part, due to domestic violence.¹³

PROGRESS FOR DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND SEXUAL ASSAULT VICTIMS

Congress' commitment to improving the response to domestic violence and sexual assault has made a significant difference in the lives of victims. The Family Violence Prevention and Services Act (FVPSA), enacted in 1984, has been the foundation of the response to domestic violence victims, supporting shelters and outreach programs across the country. The landmark Violence Against Women Act (VAWA), first authorized in 1994, has changed the way federal, tribal, state and local entities respond to domestic violence, sexual assault, dating violence and stalking.

- VAWA saved an estimated $12.6 billion in net averted costs in its first 6 years alone.¹⁴ Additionally, a 2009 Department of Justice Study, The Kentucky Civil Protective Order Study, found Kentucky saved $85 million in one year alone through the issuance of protection orders and reduction in violence.¹⁵
- More victims now report domestic violence to the police: -- there has been as much as a 51% increase in reporting rates by women and a 37% increase in reporting rates by men.¹⁶
- The rate of non-fatal intimate partner violence against women has decreased by 64%¹⁷ and the number of women killed by an intimate partner has decreased by 34%.¹⁸

- A 2008 study shows conclusively that the nation's domestic violence shelters are addressing victims' urgent and long-term needs and are helping victims protect themselves and their children.¹⁹
- A recent study found that when sexual assault victims have the support of an advocate in the aftermath of an assault, they receive more helpful information, referrals and services, and experience less secondary trauma or re-victimization by medical and legal systems. They also fare better in the short and long term and are more likely to file a police report than those without such support.²⁰

OVERWHELMING NEEDS REMAIN

While the United States has come a long way in meeting the needs of victims, there remains a significant gap between funding and the demand for services. As more and more victims courageously request services to escape from life-threatening situations, it is essential that their needs are met.

- In 2012, a 24-hour survey of domestic violence programs across the nation found that while over 64,324 victims were served in one day, there were over 10,470 unmet requests for services.²¹
- A 2012 survey of rape crisis centers indicated that 65% of centers have a waiting list for counseling services, 25% of centers have 1 full time staff or fewer to provide direct services, and 50% have had to reduce staff due to funding cuts.²²
